

Problem Statement

The emergence of Name, Image, and Likeness (NIL) agreements in college football has upset the team dynamic, increased the disparity in programs, and changed the focus from development and education to money and personal branding.